Good as New 2008

A Homeowners Introduction to the Repair of Old Houses

Workshop to be held at the Boulevard Village Hall
on Saturday 8th November.

The fourth construction workshop
exploring the repair of old buildings

In England there are an estimated 20.4 million dwellings that date from before 1919*.

Older properties form a major element of today's built environment. Current interest in old buildings has prompted an increase in demand for contractors and professionals who understand traditional materials such as lime and are knowledgeable about suitable repair techniques.

As a resident knowledge of traditional building and repair techniques could help you to make an informed decision when choosing the right techniques for any future repairs or maintenance to your property. This knowledge will also help you when choosing the best person to do the work, whether it is an architect, surveyor or builder.

The objective of the Good as New workshop is to look at issues that are specific to older properties, such as repair techniques which complement the design and construction of an old building, the legislative framework and the benefits of preserving historic character and local distinctiveness.

*Based on 1996 English House Condition Survey

The workshop will be held on Saturday 8th November 2008.

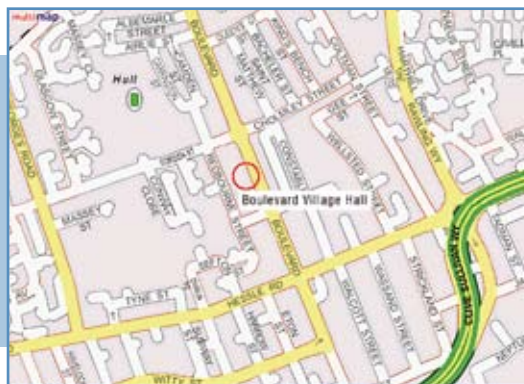

The workshops will be delivered by the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings (SPAB). Founded in 1877 by William Morris, today the SPAB is the largest, oldest and most technically expert national pressure group working to save old buildings from decay, demolition and damage. The workshop will be hosted by Hessle Road Network at the Boulevard Village Hall.

The workshop will offer the chance to look at conservation principles, along side demonstrations practical techniques.
